

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to an automatic coding system memory, which sets up the automatic coding system memory card with a security identification or various security
5 identifications on the control chip of the memory card to be compounded into an digital-management capability of keeping inter-confidential the content of the memory card and the memory card itself by both the hardware and software without installing the protection chip on the loading hardware to the 10 function of achieving and popularizing the web digital-management.